Common Myths about Learning

From Tullis (2023) published by Edutopia

MYTH	EVIDENCE
Every student has a "learning style," so we need to tailor teaching to match their preferred style.	Students learn new information better if they process it in multiple ways (e.g. senses, modalities, activities ...)
Testing is only used for assessment whether it's formative or summative.	Retrieving information from long-term memory helps students to organize information in their minds and boost memory.
Concepts that are easily learned are easily remembered, leading to techniques for quick acquisition of information.	What's easily learned is often easily forgotten. Teachers can create "desirable difficulties or productive struggle" during learning.

= Lateral reading is a powerful strategy that fact checkers use to evaluate information online.

Five types of misinformation

- Currency
timeliness of the information
- Reverance
how the information fits your needs
- Authority
the source of the information
- Accuracy
reliability and correctness of the information
- Purpose
the reason the information exists

SATIRE
THE PROBLEM WITH QUOTES FOUND ON THE INTERNET IS THAT THEY ARE OFTEN NOT TRUE.
Uses humor or exaggeration to critique or mock a person, organization or policy.

FALSE CONTEXT
Takes an image, a quote or other piece of content and puts it into a new, false context to change its meaning.

IMPOSTER CONTENT
Falsely uses a well-known name, brand or logo to fool people into believing that it is authentic content.

FABRICATED CONTENT
Is entirely made up and is designed to deceive you into thinking that it's real.

MANIPULATED CONTENT
Makes changes in original material in an effort to deceive or create a false context (for example, an image where something has been added or deleted using photo editing tools).
